

REAL ESTATE CAPITAL MARKETS CONFERENCE 2026

GOODWIN

Columbia Business School
AT THE VERY CENTER OF BUSINESS™

Featured at RECM 2026: Andy Power of Digital Realty & Chad Tredway of J.P. Morgan Asset Management

Profound shifts in technology, macroeconomics, and consumer behavior are converging to create the most complex real estate market in a decade.

The 2026 Real Estate Capital Markets Conference, hosted by Goodwin and Columbia Business School, brings together CEOs, institutional investors, and senior executives from across real estate and capital markets to make sense of what's next.

This year's program zeroes in on the forces reshaping the industry: economic volatility rewriting the playbook, capital flows diverging across regions and strategies, data centers and digital infrastructure emerging as structural catalysts, and retail's unexpected resurgence.

Anchoring the discussion are two leaders at the center of these forces:

Andy Power

President & Chief Executive Officer, Digital Realty

A leading authority on digital infrastructure, data center demand, and the global intersection of technology and real assets.

Chad Tredway

Managing Director,
Global Head of Real Estate,
J.P. Morgan Asset Management

A respected industry leader with unparalleled insight into capital markets, global real estate investment trends, and the evolution of commercial real estate.
